There has been a mill at Bacheldre since 1575 and this mill was built in 1747. This is an interesting business with lots of links and connections. It produces a range of specialist flours and has an on-line shop.

This is a small mill bakery which is run on commercial lines to produce specialist flours for craft bakers and the general public. You can shop on line or go to one of the stockists.

The flour is superior to commercially produced flour and is worth giving it a try. I like the wholemeal flour which has a texture that suits me for normal day to day baking.
